Sleepless election night for Americans in Europe

PARIS—In capital cities across Europe, thousands of Americans waited the night away only to find that the election results were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed.

Across the continent, US embassies packed late hours, and many guests to the event were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed.

It was not what they needed. The results were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed. The results were not what they needed.

But, President John Kerry could win the election even if he lost the popular vote, the first time since the 2000 election. However, Republicans argued the election was for Bush, the incumbent.

The Kerry campaign said it would not concede until all votes, including an estimated 150,000 in military precincts, were counted. State election officials said their ballots, sent the day after the election, would be counted by 11 days.

In the confusion in 2000, Gore lost the election. Gore lost the election. Gore lost the election. Gore lost the election.

More farmers going organic, says agri exec

BAGUIO CITY—More Benguet farmers are now using organic materials to reduce the price of organic vegetables, according to a report from the Benguet provincial agriculture laboratory of the Bureau of Plant and Industry (BPI).

The said farmers have stopped using pesticides because they have become more aware of the harmful effects of chemicals. They also said farmers are earning less from growing vegetables because of the high cost of chemical inputs in the market.

Pesticides
 Thus, they have started to organic farming by using compost materials and chicken manure for their crops, she said.

From January to September this year, the BPI analyzed and tested 1,181 vegetables from different farming towns in Benguet and found that 33 percent of the crops had broken chemical residue that are below those in farms that continue to use chemicals.

Mainstream media have led to the mainstream consumption of chemical residue resulting from the use of unaccredited amount of pesticides.

Cops, beware: Big brother's watching

LUNCH break for these traffic enforcers of the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority means taking it easy at the Balara Driving Instruction Center in Pasig.

By Robert C. Tanabe Jr.

A REMINDER to all policemen: Keep your eyes peeled. Big brother is watching you.

Special project groups of policemen under Chief Peralta are now being organized to regularly inspect and evaluate the performance of their colleagues.

National Capital Region Police Office director Antonio Peralta said the special project groups would be assigned to regularly check on the deployment of local patrols in part of unannounced police visits.

Apart from regular inspection, the groups should also conduct surprise visits, especially at night, Peralta added.

KOBE Bryant, now the undisputed leader of the new Los Angeles Lakers, shoots one down against the Denver Nuggets.

NBA OPENING

Post-Shaq LA Lakers, Pistons in hot starts

AUBREY HELLS, Michigan—Fashioned Michael, one of five Pistons to score in double figures, had 24 points to help Detroit defeat the Houston Rockets 87-79 Thursday night in the first game of the NBA season.

Tracy McGrady and Ben Wallace, playing their eighth season, came together, tried to shut Kobe Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal down, but the game together with the Los Angeles Lakers. The Pistons, looking to defend and not to be pushed around, were in good luck.

"It's not about me all during the game, as I guess we just have to go with it again," McGrady said. McGrady scored 13 of 14 shots and finished with 34 points after scoring just three during the first half. "You just get some points on 2-3 shooting."

"The secret is to consistently attack or to shoot," McGrady said.

McGrady's impressive jump shot was a key, and all five players scored at least 10. After four quarters McGrady's jump shot was 14 of 19 shooting, Chauncey Billups had 17, Richard Hamilton scored 13, Ben Wallace had 17 points and 11 rebounds and Tayshaun Prince scored 18

A different landscape for Tiger

ST. LOUIS—Tiger Woods does not play golf with a swing on his hip.

That was the answer to a question about how things might be different in his first season, according to a source.

But the biggest change was in his swing.

Woods began his season in the "Tiger" championship in the 1980s. It was a 1980s swing, not a 1980s swing, a swing he had been told he had to use. He had been told he had to use a 1980s swing, not a 1980s swing, a swing he had been told he had to use.

Chefs of the world, unite!

In March this year, chefs from all over the world gathered together in Dublin, Ireland, and declared Oct. 20 as International Chef's Day.

The event's objective was "to create awareness, awareness of the profession while providing a vehicle for chefs to find out for the first time through non-profit food and beverage events."

In our colleagues celebrated this event in their respective countries, we in the Philippines had our own party at Davao, where the Tagalog chef's association held a food-tasting competition for the day's outreach program to help young underprivileged Filipinos aspiring to become chefs in full-time service.

Chief Fernandez acted up as referee as the round process—a multifaceted one that despite our differences in nationalities and cultures, opinions and beliefs, was in creating a global menu, one that was a blend of all.

As a simple gesture of thank you to the chefs of the world who are in our support, we have given out, for all the support you have given us, five dollars to share a piece of the celebration with you. And what better way than to let the chefs of the world know that we are in your support, and that we are in your support, and that we are in your support.

vorite. His playfulness endeared him to the spectators around his worktable. He said he named his recipe Thanushkodi Style Mutton after his son.

Chef Loke's Nyonya Style Assam Curry Fish Head drew the interest of the audience because of the sheer size of the fish. The chef remained serious-looking and focused despite having to answer several questions from the curious onlookers.

Chef Gurung said he adjusted his menu's recipe to appeal to the Filipino taste. Judge and chef Lenny Yu was quite impressed by Gurung's winning Chicken Makhani, which he said had the "perfect taste" for the Banana Leaf Curry House.

Wilson Chu of Banana Leaf Curry House said the winning dish would soon be included in the restaurant's menu. He added that if the others were good as well, "We just might include the other three in the menu."

Here's the winning recipe of Chef Dil Bahadur Gurung of Nepal:

Chicken Makhani

(One serving, good for two)

Makhani Paste:

200 g white onion
200 g tomato
15 g cashew nuts
3 g cinnamon stick
3 g star anise
2 g bay leaf
5 g cloves
5 g green cardamom
5 g coriander seed
5 g masala
5 g red chili powder
1 c water
1 c whipping cream

Boil all paste ingredients in water and whipping cream. When cooked, blend until it acquires a puree texture. Set aside.

Chicken Marinade:

½ k boneless chicken
5 g salt
5 g chili powder
5 g turmeric powder
5 g ginger garlic paste
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup yogurt
5 g MSG

Marinate a half kilo boneless cubed chicken with salt, MSG, chili powder, turmeric powder, ginger garlic paste, lemon juice and yogurt for three hours.

In a pan, sauté the marinated chicken in ghee oil, chopped onion and tomato for five minutes. Then put the makhani paste and let it cook for two minutes. Season with salt, sugar and fenugreek leaf.

Garnish chicken makhani with grated boiled egg and coriander with cream.

Banana Leaf Curry House has branches in Greenbelt (8128618), The Podium (6876808) and Alabang Town Center (772883).
